Air cargo market trend ex Korea

IATA expects that air cargo demand will continue to stagnate this year. As the US-China tariff dispute had more impact than expected, the rebound expectations were lowered. However, not all forecasts for the air cargo market are negative. Air cargo requires open boundaries for trade, and it will have to move forward with a more expansive globalization to benefit from improved connectivity among countries.

The table below shows CASS air cargo export tonnage by country in the top 10 countries. With the top 10 countries of China, the United States, Vietnam, Hong Kong, Japan and Germany they have achieved 40,606 tons and occupied 74.1% of total tonnage. There were some changes in the ranking compared to the same month of the previous year, and the total tonnage fell -10.7 percent from a year earlier.[CASS]
